Introduction

This guide is intended to help you understand what incentives are available both in the federal tax code and in most states.

The federal government has offered tax breaks since 1997 for the purchase of qualified long term care insurance policies.

Most states offer incentives for those who purchase long term care insurance. The two primary incentives are:

- state credits or deductions; and
- asset-retention incentives via Partnership insurance policies (more information on page 7).

Premiums Paid by an Individual

Long term care insurance premiums can be itemized as a medical expense. However, the amount of premium that can be itemized is limited based on age. This is called the Eligible Premium, shown on the table below.

Individual Premium Deductibility Limits: 2019
Age at end of tax year	Max Eligible Premium Deduction
40 or under	$420
Over 40 but not greater than 50	$790
Over 50 but not greater than 60	$1,580
Over 60 but not greater than 70	$4,220
Over 70	$5,270

If total medical expenses – including Eligible long term care insurance premium – exceed 10% of Adjusted Gross Income (AGI), the excess is deductible.

Please note that only Tax-Qualified long term care insurance – as defined by the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) – is eligible for a federal tax deduction. Most, but not all, long term care insurance policies currently available are Tax-Qualified. Most policies issued before HIPAA's effective date of January 1, 1997 were granted a grandfathered Tax-Qualified status.

Health Savings Accounts (HSAs)

Long term care insurance premiums are an acceptable, tax-free, health care expense from an HSA, but only up to the age-based Eligible Premium limit, and only for Tax-Qualified policies.

Medical Savings Accounts (Archer MSAs)

Long term care insurance premiums are an acceptable expenditure.

Cafeteria Plan

Long term care insurance is not allowed in a pre-tax Section 125 (Cafeteria) Plan. Voluntary premiums paid through payroll deduction must be withheld on an after-tax basis. If applicable, the employee may be able to take an itemized deduction or a reimbursement from an HSA.

Premiums Paid by an Employer

Employer-Paid Long Term Care Insurance

Employers (including non-profits) who pay some or all of a non-owner employee's long term care insurance premium may deduct the expense. In addition, the employer can also deduct the long term care premium paid for a spouse or other tax dependent of the employee. There is no limit to the amount of premium an employer can pay and deduct, and premiums paid by an employer are excluded from the employee's gross income. This applies to ANY business entity as long as the employer is paying for a non-owner employee.

Health Reimbursement Accounts (HRAs) or Health Reimbursement Arrangements (HRAs)

Long term care insurance premiums are an acceptable, tax-free, health care expense from an HRA, but only up to the age-based Eligible Premium limit, and only for Tax-Qualified policies.

C-Corporation, or Entity with a 501 Trust

Shareholders (owners) who are also W-2 employees are treated for long term care insurance as any other employee. All premiums paid for shareholder/employees, their spouse and tax dependents are deductible, and no age-based Eligible Premium limits apply. There is no requirement that long term care insurance be provided on a non-discriminatory basis.

Premiums paid for shareholders who are not employees are treated as a dividend – taxable to both the corporation and the shareholder.

Self-Employed Business Owners

Business owners who are treated as self-employed can deduct long term care insurance like health insurance without itemizing as part of the Self-Employed Health Insurance Deduction. This is an above-the-line deduction, not subject to the AGI threshold for non-business-owner individuals.

Sole Proprietor

Premium paid by the business for the owner, spouse and other tax dependents must be recognized as a draw, and is reported as business income. The owner can take up to the age-based Eligible Premium as a Self-Employed Health Insurance Deduction for each person covered.

Partnerships and LLCs

Premiums paid for a partner, spouse and other tax dependents are included as income, and reported on the partner's K-1. The partner can then take up to the age-based Eligible Premium as a Self-employed Health Insurance Deduction for each insured.

Subchapter S Corporations

Shareholders who own more than 2% of the stock of a sub-S corporation are generally treated as partners for health and long term care insurance deductibility purposes. Individual long term care insurance policies must be paid by the S-corporation directly to the insurance company (or reimbursed with a formal, written agreement). The shareholder/employee must include the long term care insurance premium paid in their AGI; however, they may deduct up to 100% of the age-based Eligible Premium amount, without regard to the 10% AGI threshold.

Taxation of Long Term Care Insurance Benefits

Benefits are normally tax-free as long as the insured is chronically ill and the benefits are used to pay for qualified long term care services. Benefits received on a "per diem" basis may be taxable, if they exceed both the cost of qualified care services and a daily threshold of $370 (2019 amount).

Other Tax Incentives

While the decision whether or not to purchase long term care insurance is usually not made based on tax deductibility only, many incentives are available.

The Pension Protection Act of 2005 includes provisions allowing for a tax-free 1035 exchange of individually-owned life insurance or annuity policies into Qualified long term care insurance policies. In some cases, this allows existing policyholders to obtain long term care insurance protection with no out-of-pocket expense.

State Tax Incentives

The following states have either income tax deductions or tax credits for individuals who purchase long term care insurance policies.

Alabama Subject to specified limitations, premiums for qualified long term care insurance are deductible.

Arkansas Premiums for a qualified insurance policy may be deductible as medical expense, if unreimbursed medical expenses exceed 10% of the taxpayer's Adjusted Gross Income.

California Premiums for a qualified long term care insurance contract are deductible to the extent they are deductible for federal income tax purposes.

Colorado Tax credit for 25% of total premiums paid during tax year, or $150 for each policy, whichever is less. Credit available to taxpayers with federal taxable income <$50,000 (<$100,000 for joint returns). Policy must meet Colorado's definition of long term care.

District of Columbia Deduction for up to $500 long term care insurance premium per year per individual is allowed for LTCI policies which meet the District of Columbia's definition of long term care.

Hawaii Long term care insurance premiums are included as unreimbursed medical expenses, subject to the federal deduction limits. These premiums are deductible to the extent that total unreimbursed medical expenses exceed 10% of Hawaii Adjusted Gross Income.

Idaho Full amount of the premium paid by a taxpayer for a qualified long term care insurance policy meeting Idaho's definition of long term care insurance is deductible for the taxpayer and dependents, or taxpayer's employee - to the extent that the premium is not otherwise deductible or accounted for by Idaho income tax purposes.

Indiana The full amount of the premium paid for a qualified LTCI Partnership policy which meets the definition of the Indiana Code is deductible.

Iowa Long term care insurance premiums for nursing home coverage are tax-deductible to the extent allowable under federal law and not otherwise deducted in computing Adjusted Gross Income.

Kentucky Premiums for long term care insurance policies as defined in the Kentucky code are excluded from Kentucky Adjusted Gross Income.

Louisiana State tax credit of 10% of long term care insurance premiums that meet eligibility requirements.

Maine Deduction of full premium less any amount deducted for federal income tax purposes and by any long term care insurance premiums claimed as an itemized deduction pursuant to Maine Rev. Stat. tit. 36 section 5125.

Employers providing long term care benefits to employees may qualify for a tax credit equal to the lowest of the following: 1) $5,000, 2) 20% of the taxpayer's costs to provide the benefit, or 3) $100 for each employee covered by an employer-paid policy.

Maryland One-time taxpayer credit for self, spouse, parents or children, up to $500 cap based on eligible federally-qualified long-term care insurance premiums. Employers may claim a tax credit of 5% of costs to provide long term care insurance, up to the lesser of $5,000 or $100 multiplied by the number of participating employees.

Minnesota Individual state tax credit equal to the lesser of $100 or 25 percent of the amount paid for each owner of an eligible policy. Eligible policies must have benefits of at least $100,000. The maximum total credit is $200 annually on a joint return, $100 for other filers. Any unused tax credit may not be carried forward to future tax years.

Mississippi Individual tax credit equal to 25% of the premium for a qualified long term care insurance policy, with a maximum credit of $500. A credit is not permitted for any premiums that were deducted in arriving at taxable income. Unused tax credit may not be carried forward.

Missouri Individual tax deduction for premiums paid for a long term care insurance policy that are non-reimbursed and not included in itemized deductions. Policy does NOT have to be tax qualified.

Montana Qualified Long Term Care premiums can either be totally deducted for the taxpayer, taxpayer's parents, grandparents & dependents OR can be used as part of a Tax Credit for qualifying individuals or families through Montana's Elderly Care Credit. Note: Qualifying individuals or family can use both the deduction and the Credit only if Qualified LTCI premiums are not used as part of Elderly Care Credit calculations.

New Jersey Long term care insurance premiums allowed under the deduction for medical expenses, to the extent they exceed 2% of adjusted gross income.

New Mexico CREDIT: Taxpayers age 65+ who are not the dependent of another taxpayer may claim a credit of $2,800 for long term care insurance premiums paid for the taxpayer, spouse or dependents, if the insurance and unreimbursed medical care expenses equal $28,000 or more.

EXEMPTION: Long term care insurance premiums are included in the unreimbursed medical care expenses exemption of $3,000 for taxpayers age 65+, if such expenses equal $28,000 or more.

New York Tax credit for 20% of long term care insurance premium paid for a policy approved by the superintendent of insurance. Individuals paying the premiums for others are eligible for the tax credit (as well as their own, if applicable) regardless of other's tax dependency status; i.e., adult child could pay premium for parents and get a tax credit even if parents are not dependents. Tax credit is not refundable; however, unused credits may be carried forward.

North Dakota Maximum tax credit for a qualified North Dakota LTCI Partnership policy is $250 for each insured taxpayer and spouse.

Ohio Qualified long term care insurance is deductible for taxpayer, spouse and dependents, to the extent not already deducted or excluded in computing federal or Ohio Adjusted Gross Income.

Oklahoma Long term care insurance premiums deductible on state returns to extent deductible under federal law.

Virginia Taxpayers can take a deduction for long term care insurance premiums from federal Adjusted Gross Income to compute VA taxable income, but only if the taxpayer didn't deduct long term care insurance premiums for federal income tax purposes.

West Virginia Taxpayers can deduct from Federal AGI, for state tax purposes, the cost of a long term care insurance policy as defined in the West Virginia Code, for the taxpayer, his/her spouse, parent or other dependent, to the extent that the deduction is not allowed on federal income tax return.

Wisconsin Taxpayers take a deduction from Federal AGI for a portion of long term care insurance premium in calculating WI taxable income, including long term care insurance premium spent for a spouse's policy, to the extent a deduction isn't taken federally. The amount of long term care insurance premium deductible in calculating federal taxable income is not included in calculating the Wisconsin itemized deductions credit.

Partnership Policies

Thanks to the Deficit Reduction Act of 2005, dozens of states have now enacted what are called "DRA Partnership" long term care plans. This refers to a partnership between private industry and public funding of long term care, the latter in the form of Medicaid.¹ Our government has incentivized the purchase of long term care insurance by synchronizing these programs in a very particular way.

For every $1 in long term care claims paid from a Partnership-Qualified ("PQ") plan, $1 is disregarded from Medicaid's asset eligibility rules at application, and the same $1 is also disregarded during Medicaid estate recovery. Special care should be taken when designing a PQ plan. Its total lifetime account value, relative to one's underlying estate, should be considered. Inflation should also be considered.

Special agent training is required to sell PQ plans. Please note that the states of CA, CT, IN, and NY each instituted Partnership programs which pre-dated the DRA; these four "grandfathered" states are unique in their features.
